SOME OF LILIAN'S LETTERS.

COUSINLY CORRESPONDENCE.

A Man Who Thinks He Knows Something About the Ring—A Visit to Mr. Dunstan—Phases of the Case.

The Dispatch correspondent at West Point telegraphed as follows last night: Cluverius's brother and his aunt, Mrs. Tunstall, passed through West Point this morning on their way to Richmond.

Cluverius did not on his last trip from Richmond go up the Mattaponi on the Lee, but crossed the river here and went home in a buggy. On the way he stopped at Centerville and talked with several persons. A gentleman here came down on the train with him, and they talked with him, and he was perfectly cool and self-possessed.

THE PRISONER.

In the Courthouse neighborhood, where Miss Madison was raised, the people are almost unanimous in saying that the young lady is universally well spoken of. Everybody says that no word affecting her character was ever heard.

In this town live two young ladies who went to school with her at Brunsington. They say she was quiet, amiable, and modest.

A SHOCK. Where Miss Madison was raised, the people are almost unanimous in saying that the young lady is universally well spoken of. Everybody says that no word affecting her character was ever heard.

Cluverius was popular and well thought of in his neighborhood, and his arrest was a great shock.

THE WATCH-KEY. It is publicly announced here (West Point) to-day that a gentleman states positively that the watch-key described in this morning's Dispatch once belonged to Mr. Samuel Tunstall, and that he has written the authorities in Richmond to that effect.

Letters from Lilian to a Cousin in Richmond. The following letters throw little, if any, light at all upon Miss Madison's last visit to Richmond; but, as they were written to a cousin, and in the full freedom of girlish confidence, they are valuable as showing the character of the deceased.

This letter was mailed October 24, 1884.

Address: Millboro' Springs, Bath county, Va., care Mrs. J. B. Dickinson.

MAPLE GROVE, BATH CO., VA., October 23, 1884.

My Dear — As I have gotten my school quite in "gear," I will write you something of it, as well as of No. 1. Well, I have Mrs. D.'s four and two daughters, and expect one more, and am getting on finely with them all. So far they have been very sweet children; two of them are larger than myself. I think they are all very good children. Mrs. D. and all her family are nice of people. I don't know such a fine and nice house anywhere in King William as she has—every room nicely papered and carpeted. My room looks like a parlor, and I just wish you all could see her greenhouse of flowers. It is a beauty. So won't I have a good time punning on button-hole bouquets? This is a beautiful country up here. Do wish you all lived up here. I have gotten acquainted with a lot of people, and all of them are nice, too, and I believe most of all the girls have a brother or two, so of course you know I like all the girls when that is the case. I have my own time boat-riding, as I have to cross the river twice a day to go to the school-house. I have a nice time at it, too, you may imagine, slipping down a wet river bank in the frost, and how do you reckon it will be when it is all covered over with snow and ice? I expect I shall know how to skate after this winter. Well, I know you are tired of such nonsense, so I will introduce a more sensible subject, suppose Aunt A. has gotten tired of me, and this time, as she was to have gone Tuesday. Give much love to her, and tell her I am getting on finely thus far. Tell Cousin Mag. I will write to her soon; perhaps next week. I got on splendidly on the train; met with some very nice ladies, who kept me very company, and I got here before night. When I saw cousin John last— [The rest of the letter is missing.]

MILLBORO' SPRINGS, VA., January 10, 1885.

My Dear Cousin and Aunts: I have been intending for some time to write to you all, but have been occupied most all the time. I spent most of Xmas at Cousin John's, and we had a grand time. But for Cousin M. being sick we certainly would have had lots of fun, but got better towards the last, and we made up for lost time I tell you. Cousin J. came down, and we certainly enjoyed his company. He acted just like a single man—told the girls to parties, &c., &c. I had my escort for the whole time, and don't you forget it. He is one of the nicest fellows in Bath. I can tell you, so you can come now and have all the rest of them, if you will. There are a good many more you will like just as well as the one I am talking of. Well, enough of such trash. I will give you a list of my Xmas presents—first, a pretty pair of car-drops; second, a lovely silk handkerchief; third, a real nice box of stationery; fourth, a lovely Xmas card; fifth, a pretty ornament for the hair; sixth, another Xmas card; seventh, a real nice pair of fashionable stockings; eighth, a lovely basket of friends love letters from Bath scholars. So you see I must have some of them, as all my presents were from Bath people except one. How have you all been this cold weather, for it certainly has been a awful cold up here? I don't think my cough is quite as bad now as it has been, but I am not very well. I have had such a headache for some days, but hope it will be well to-morrow. How will she live now after her school, and I will live just as well as the one I am talking of. Well, enough of such trash. I will give you a list of my Xmas presents—first, a pretty pair of car-drops; second, a lovely silk handkerchief; third, a real nice box of stationery; fourth, a lovely Xmas card; fifth, a pretty ornament for the hair; sixth, another Xmas card; seventh, a real nice pair of fashionable stockings; eighth, a lovely basket of friends love letters from Bath scholars. I will give you a list of my Xmas presents—first, a pretty pair of car-drops; second, a lovely silk handkerchief; third, a real nice box of stationery; fourth, a lovely Xmas card; fifth, a pretty ornament for the hair; sixth, another Xmas card; seventh, a real nice pair of fashionable stockings; eighth, a lovely basket of friends love letters from Bath scholars. So you see I must have some of them, as all my presents were from Bath people except one. How have you all been this cold weather, for it certainly has been a awful cold up here? I don't think my cough is quite as bad now as it has been, but I am not very well. I have had such a headache for some days, but hope it will be well to-morrow. How will she live now after her school, and I will live just as well as the one I am talking of. Well, enough of such trash.
